When will the last apple be picked?

We are now on the home run of the apple harvest. When will we finish? The possibility of rain on Wednesday makes Thursday more likely than not. Who knows, we might even still be picking on Friday?

Andrew Sheriff and John Jasper are happy to collect a dollar coin off anyone who would like to nominate a finishing day and time with the winner to take the total prize pool.

The company wishes to thank all workers (permanent employees and seasonal workers) who have contributed to making a difficult harvest as smooth as possible. Despite the drought and unusually high temperatures the apples and pears have picked out reasonably well. Overall pickers have had a fairly good season and we believe the average bin tally per picker appears to have risen over previous years.

End of Season BBQ

To celebrate the end (or almost end) of the harvest the company is holding a BBQ after work on Thursday at the igloo from 5.00 pm to 7.00 pm. Beer and soft drinks will be provided but it is not a big booze up and we will finish everything up at 7.00 pm. Please come along and meet a few of your fellow workmates in a social atmosphere. If you think you might have a few drinks please make arrangements for someone to safely drive you home.

Seasonal Camp Closing

Due to the BBQ there will be no meal served in the dining room on Thursday night and no meal charge will apply. We are planning to shut the camp after breakfast on Saturday morning. All workers with the exception of full time employees are required to make arrangements to leave the camp on Friday or Saturday. Please let the office or Ray know when you are planning to leave.
